

OHIOANS WILL GO TO POLLS TUESDAY

XENIA VOTERS FACE IMPORTANT DUTY IN VOTING ON TUESDAY

City Commission And School Board Are Among Issues

Xenia voters will elect two members to City Commission, three members to the city school board, express their approval or disapproval of the proposed $7,500,000 welfare bond issue and help elect three members to a clerk to the Xenia Twp. board of trustees at Tuesday's general election.

Voters will have three candidates to choose from in filling two vacancies on City Commission created by expiration of the terms of I. S. Dines and Mayor Jacob Kany.

Dines, completing an appointive term on the commission, led the commission ticket at the August primary as a candidate for his first elective term of four years. Kany, seeking reelection for a second term, polled the second greatest number of votes. The third candidate in the race is Lawrence E. John, Xenia business man.

Five candidates comprise the field in the contest for three seats on the city board of education. Charles A. Bone and Louis F. Clark, whose terms expire, seek another term. Their opponents are Fred W. Lang, auto dealer; Dr. J. A. Yoder, osteopath, and Carl E. Knisley, contractor. City Manager M. C. Smith's term on the board also ends this year but he declined to be a candidate again.

Electors of Xenia as well as the four precincts in Xenia Twp. will vote upon the township board of trustees race in which six candidates are enrolled for three vacancies. Their terms expiring, W. M. Harper, Graham Bryson and Ward Grant are candidates for reelection. They have opposition from C. S. McDaniel, B. D. Conklin and Jacob Harner.

There is also a contest for clerk-treasurer of the township board with J. A. Wipert opposing R. E. Bryson in the latter's campaign for reelection.

J. B. Rife, Clifton, and H. E. Bales, Jamestown, whose terms close this year, will be re-elected members of the Greene County School board without opposition.

Considerable interest is being manifested among the voters of Xenia Twp. school district in the competition between three candidates for two places on the Xenia Twp. school board because of factional differences in the community.

Horace Anderson, at present a member of the minority faction on the board, is after another term. The group now in control is represented by Harvey E. Fulkerson, who is completing an appointive term and seeks to be elected for a full-length term of office.

The third candidate is Crampton B. Lott, prominent resident of the township.

A grand total of more than 300 candidates for city, township village and school board offices in all parts of Greene County filed nominating petitions with the board of elections.

Announcement is made by the board of elections that all candidates are running on non-partisan tickets, this statement being made to correct a possible misleading impression that candidates are running under the banner of one or the other of the two major political parties.

A Vital Election!

(AN EDITORIAL)

It should not be necessary to remind Xenians that the result of the election Tuesday may affect them more directly and more pointedly, than any state or national election.

The minor political divisions, more closely contact the people themselves, than any other division of government.

Xenians are reminded that there is much at stake in the selection of two city commissioners Tuesday—that it may mean more to the man in the street now than at any time before.

Let everyone with the right to vote study the problems and issues that face the municipal government, study the candidates who are presenting themselves for his consideration, make up his mind and above all, VOTE Tuesday.

Voting, which was designed as a privilege of citizenship has come to be a duty of citizenship. Anyone who shirks certainly should yield his right to be critical of the administration, no matter what course it takes.

In European countries where men have fought and bled for the right of franchise, there is no urge necessary to get them to exercise the right of their newly-found ballot. Here, where the franchise is a birthright, voters have fallen into a state of apathy from which they are only partially roused by the importance of a presidential election.

Tuesday's election means more in the individual lives of the citizens of Xenia than has any election for a long time and deserves a record vote.

GIRL WHO CONFESSED MURDER NOW BLAMES VICTIM'S HUSBAND

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 2.—Following a servant girl's fourth confession, police today tried to solve the murder of Mrs. Maddux, 35, by questioning Walter Maddux, 35, her husband.

The girl, Clara Fish, 19, repudiated her third confession in which she said she was the murderer, by telling police after thirty hours of continuous grilling that Maddux was the actual slayer.

The servant girl said in the third confession she slashed the throat of Mrs. Maddux after the victim requested her to do so, police declared.

DAYTON MAN KILLS WIFE, ENDS LIFE

DAYTON, O., Nov. 2.—The double death of Floyd A. Gilbert, 45, and his wife, Emma, 43, was pronounced a murder and suicide by Coroner Maurice Cooper here today.

Neighbors who saw smoke issuing from the Gilbert home yesterday discovered the lifeless bodies of Gilbert and his wife amid kerosene-soaked furnishings of an upstairs room.

Coroner Cooper expressed the belief that Gilbert had struck his wife on the head with a hatchet five times and then had shot himself through the head after setting fire to the house.

A quarrel between the two was reported by neighbors as having taken place Saturday night and early yesterday. Gilbert was seen to drag his wife back into the house after she had run screaming from the door.

Barker has served two prison terms for liquor law violations. He was released about a year ago after serving the second sentence.

FIRST DISTRICT TO SELECT SUCCESSOR TO FORMER SPEAKER

Nation Watches Race Between Lorbach And Hollister

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 2.—Attorney John B. Hollister and State Senator David P. Lorbach brought their campaigns to a close today and looked to voters of the first congressional district to decide which of them will succeed the late Speaker Nicholas Longworth at Washington.

The eyes of the nation will be on them tomorrow night when the returns start rolling in because the answer to the puzzle of the first district will help determine whether congress will be Republican or Democratic.

In the opinion of Cincinnati political experts today, the race between them is a toss-up.

Hollister, the Republican candidate, will await the voters' decision cheered by a recent declaration by former Governor Myers V. Cooper, in a conference with President Hoover, that he will be elected.

That is about the only prediction on tomorrow's election here that anybody has dared to make.

Hollister and Lorbach, the Democratic candidate, are equally vicious in their condemnation of the prohibition law, assuring that a wet will be elected.

Hollister, for example, has said, "Our prohibition laws are silly. And unless the country does something about prohibition, it will get sillier and sillier."

If Hollister goes to congress, it will be a political leap from the city board of education. He has held no other public office.

Lorbach, however, has been in the public eye since he became a member of the state senate. The Lorbach-directed state highway investigation during the past summer gained state-wide attention.

Both candidates have been unable to carry on their campaigns with their respective municipal parties.

Democrats are united with the charter-Republicans in a charter group movement, locally. The charterists have directed a savage attack on the municipal Republicans from which Hollister may suffer.

Both are lawyers, and both hold party views on tariff.

"Nobody ever wrote a perfect tariff bill, and nobody ever will, but the 50 per cent flexibility in the Smoot-Hawley bill allows all the leeway necessary," Hollister said in his campaign.

To Lorbach the present bill, however, "is a great menace, too high, not competitive, and actually prohibitive."

A third candidate, Robert A. Dunderstadt, the Progressive party's candidate, is not believed by political experts to have a possible chance to win.

NAN BRITTON LIBEL TRIAL IS RESUMED

TOLEDO, O., Nov. 2.—Continuing with testimony that was intended to defend the character and reputation of the plaintiff, which was played in the case presented by the defense, the trial of the $50,000 libel suit instituted by Nan Britton against C. A. Klunk, of Marion, O., was resumed in federal court here today.

Attorney William Marsteller of Cleveland, chief counsel for the author-plaintiff, who wrote "The President's Daughter," was scheduled to continue his readings from the book at the point where he was halted for the week end adjournment of the hearing.

With the defense case already rested, it was believed that the testimony for the plaintiff, who charges she was defamed in the book, "The Answer to the President's Daughter," allegedly distributed by Klunk, might also come to an end today or tomorrow.

BAKERS PRICE WAR CAUSES BOMBINGS

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 2.—A two-state price war between Italian bakers in New York and Pennsylvania was believed today to have resulted in the bombing of the Home of Michael Staccarto, the third blast within the past four days.

Staccarto's home was badly damaged but no one was injured. Staccarto, as the victims of the other bombings, was selling Italian bread one cent less than the price established by New York bakers, police said.

The bomb was hurled from a car bearing New York license plates.

EIGHT-ARRESTED IN LIQUOR RING

PORTSMOUTH, O., Nov. 2.—Attempting to smash an alleged liquor ring supposed to have an extensive field of operations in this vicinity, federal prohibition agents today held under arrest eight persons rounded up yesterday in Scioto and Lawrence counties.

When Edna sees herself in the mirror she giggles, "I'm so funny."

MAN FLEEING FROM SCENE OF SHOOTING KILLED BY POLICE

Victim Near Death; Newark Police End Assaultant's Life

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 2.—Shot through the neck in an alleged brawl in a Columbus hotel by a man who, according to police was killed later by a Newark, O., officer, Thomas H. Trower, 48, a resident of the National Military Home at Dayton was reported to be in a fair condition here today.

Trower's assailant, Aleio Sanchez of Columbus, according to police, was shot down in Newark early Sunday after he had forced a taxi-cab driver to drive him there under a threat of death.

Columbus authorities believe that Sanchez and another man they sought today were the pair who held up a tailor shop Saturday night and escaped with $166. A watch, pocket-knife and a pin said to have been taken in the robbery were found in Sanchez's pockets.

Trower was shot in his room at a local hotel, Sanchez disappeared after the shooting and, according to the story of Fred Ashbaugh, cab driver, hired a cab to be taken to Newark. At Granville, six miles west of Newark, he threatened Ashbaugh and robbed him of $31. He allegedly confessed to Ashbaugh that he had "killed a man in Columbus."

At Newark, Ashbaugh said Sanchez debated whether or not to shoot him. Sanchez listened to the driver's pleas however and ordered him to "drive around." Ashbaugh drove to the Newark police station and leaped from the car. Sanchez drove on and was pursued by the cab driver and police officers. He was shot down and fatally wounded while fleeing.

JAPANESE CONTINUE TROOP MOVEMENTS; CLASHES REPORTED

Mongols Concentrate On Railway; Fifty Chinese
Killed

By I. N. S.

With the time set by the League of Nations for Japanese evacuation of Manchuria only two weeks away, new heavy movements of Japanese and Mongolian troops were reported today simultaneously with a new Sino-Japanese clash at Toutaokow which cost fifty Chinese lives.

Information received at Mukden by International News Service declared more than 1,000 Mongol soldiers, some wearing Russian uniforms, were concentrating near Hailar on the Chinese eastern railway, aggravating the tense situation caused by repeated Japanese charges the Soviets are interfering in the Manchurian crisis.

With large forces of Japanese troops being shifted from Kirin toward Changchun, Chinese circles in Peiping predicted a Japanese advance into Heilungkiang province, alleged theatre of Soviet Russian participation.

Meanwhile, a new bombing by Japanese airplanes occurred at Tungliang, throwing the population of the city into a panic and causing five deaths. An unconfirmed report from Riga declared Japan had sent a second note of protest to Moscow against Soviet interference, but there were no indications of Tokyo's intention to abide by the League Council's resolution and remove its troops from newly occupied zones by November 16.

In Tokyo, War Minister Jiro Minami told the cabinet that his reports from Manchuria indicated the Soviets had supplied both arms and ammunition to Chinese in the northern provinces, at the same time bargaining with the Chinese for a free hand for military operations against white Russians in the Hulunpui and Hallar areas.

TOKYO, Nov. 2.—Fifty Chinese bandits were killed today in a battle with Japanese troops at the village of Toutaokow, south of Supingkiang, according to dispatches received here from Mukden.

The scene of the fighting was on the Supingkiang-Mukden railway. Coincident with reports of increasing Japanese military activity in the Manchurian zone of occupation, charges were reiterated today that Chinese troops in northern

Both candidates for the late speaker's congressional seat, State Senator David P. Lorbach, carrying the Democratic standard, and John B. Hollister, Republican and prominent attorney, are outspoken "wets."

Municipal Judge Martin L. Sweeney is expected to carry the Democrats to a victory over D. Haydn Parry, a Republican, in the Cleveland congressional contest in the 20th district.

Harassed by lack of funds for relief purposes, several cities are combining caution and economy in preparation for their selection of mayors.

FORMER JUDGE WILL FACE EMBEZZLING CHARGE IN COURT

Accused Of Helping Former Clerk In Taking Money

PORTSMOUTH, O., Nov. 2.—William R. Sprague, resigned judge of the Portsmouth municipal court, was to be brought before the bar of common pleas court here today to face the accusation of aiding and abetting Mrs. Marguerite Clark Tidd in embezzling $2,115 from the funds of the municipal court.

The testimony of Mrs. Tidd, who was convicted on an embezzlement charge and is now awaiting a ruling on motion for a new trial, and that of her husband, Cecil D. Tidd, attorney, is to be used by the prosecution in an attempt to prove that the judge aided Mrs. Clark in securing the money.

Sprague was implicated in the testimony of Mrs. Tidd during the progress of her own trial. The woman, who was a former clerk under the judge, testified that the jurist knew of transactions involving the court funds and that he used money which she obtained to take her on a trip to New York.

Tidd was a witness in his wife's trial and stated from the stand that he found Sprague and his wife, scantily clad, in a camp where the in Mrs. Tidd's trial.

The judge's resignation from the municipal bench came shortly after he allegedly admitted knowledge of the shortage of funds as revealed in Mrs. Tidd's trial.

THINK TWO MILLION WILL MARK BALLOTS THROUGHOUT STATE

Welfare Bond Issue Features Interest In Elections

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 2.—Nearly two million Ohioans will mark ballots tomorrow in an election spattered with political coloring and packed with tremendous economic significance.

While individual municipalities are stirred by exciting mayoralty fights and a confusing maze of "charity bonds," general state-wide interest is centered in congressional battles in Cincinnati and Cleveland and in Governor George White's welfare bond issue.

The tumult of campaigning faded away today before the overshadowing "day of reckoning," while voters weighed the pros and cons of what they recognize as a crucial election with the ghost of depression haunting the polls.

"Charity bonds" will be submitted to a score of communities and out of the vote will come the answer to the question of whether emergency relief action will be necessary at a special session of the state legislature.

Governor White's welfare bond issue plan, to be acted upon in a state-wide ballot, will test whether the voters are willing to dig down into fattened purses and approve a $7,500,000 expenditure for improvements at welfare institutions.

Central and southern Ohio will vote on levies needed to keep public schools in operation on a normal basis.

Alliance, Wooster and East Liverpool will each be embroiled in a vote on "blue law" ordinances, placing a ban on Sunday afternoon movies.

Due to the precarious financial conditions of several local educational systems, hotter-than-usual school board fights have sprung up. The congressional battles at Cleveland and Cincinnati hold more than localized interest. The entire nation is watching the outcome of these two elections, particularly that at Cincinnati where a successor is to be chosen to fill the vacancy left by the death of Speaker Nicholas Longworth.

Both candidates for the late speaker's congressional seat, State Senator David P. Lorbach, carrying the Democratic standard, and John B. Hollister, Republican and prominent attorney, are outspoken "wets."

Municipal Judge Martin L. Sweeney is expected to carry the Democrats to a victory over D. Haydn Parry, a Republican, in the Cleveland congressional contest in the 20th district.

PRISONER TWELVE YEARS-IS PAROLED

After serving twelve years and two months in prison, Frank Cooper, colored, sentenced to life imprisonment from Greene County, on a statutory charge, was released on parole Monday from the state prison farm at London.

Cooper was sentenced by the late Common Pleas Judge C. H. Kyle on August 22, 1919 after pleading guilty to an offense committed against his 16-year-old daughter. At that time he was a farmer residing near Jamestown.

The Negro was among thirty-two prisoners granted paroles by the Ohio Parole Board Saturday. Most of the men given their freedom were long-term offenders, the majority having been confined at the prison farm since 1922 and 1923.

STRIKING TREBEIN-FLYNN BUILDING IS EXPOSED TO VIEW

Workmen began removal of the superstructure from the front of the newly remodelled Trebein-Flynn Bldg., Detroit and Second Sts., Monday revealing the handsome exterior of the structure. An unusual exterior architecture has attracted considerable comment since the construction has been in progress. The entire front of the two-story structure is constructed of black brick and an attractive contrasting scheme has been obtained by using all metal work in aluminum.

The metal coping and the metal work around the ground-floor store windows, is of aluminum and the name "Trebein-Flynn" is in the same metal. On the Second St. side of the building a buff brick was used to match a rear portion remodelled some time ago, and the roof architecture has been changed, eliminating an old gable.

The corner room is being prepared for the occupancy soon of the Miller-Jones Co., which will operate a shoe store in the room.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

We give thanks to God and the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, praying always for you.—Colossians, 1, 3.

LABOR IS WISE

The practical elimination of the Labor party from the British Parliament as a result of the election Tuesday, is one more concrete proof of the wisdom shown by the American Federation of Labor in refusing to become involved in the handicaps and hazards of partisanship by forming a separate political organization.

The strength of the British Labor party was its position as champion and representative of a single class in Great Britain. But that position also was its fatal weakness. Special class interest cannot permanently take precedence of general interest.

The Labor party went into power in the United Kingdom to accomplish particular things for its membership. Because it had in its leadership two men with visions far broader than their organization, it was able to keep control of things for a considerable time. But when a national crisis affecting everybody in the country arrived, and it was necessary for the Government to take a broad view of things and consider impartially the needs and interests of the entire nation, British labor was unable to rise to the occasion. It had thought too long in terms of special interest, special privilege and antagonism to all outside its membership. It did not represent a cross-section of the population. Its vision was narrow and self-centered. Its councils lacked balance and proportion. It repudiated its wise leadership and suffered the inevitable fate of any party that tries to become greater than the whole.

In the United States, labor has large, legitimate interests which have a right to serious attention when national policies and the national welfare are considered. It insists that they shall be given proper deference. But American labor also remembers that likewise there are other elements in the population with equally legitimate interests, among them capital and agriculture; and it understands that the best good for everybody is to be found in a give and take, live and let live, community of interest. The wise leadership of American trades unionism knows that any part of the Nation finally conserves its own interest best by considering the general common good, by working to minimize class consciousness and class antagonism, and by refraining from an attempt to seize the Government and make it a vehicle for the exclusive promotion of special class ideas and aims.

As a consequence of its attitude of restraint, organized labor in the United States commands more public respect and confidence and more genuine good will and friendliness than does labor in any other country on the globe; and its influence is correspondingly assured and effective; and when it has a cause to present in legislative halls it is quite independent of the dominance of any party. If labor is never "in" politically in America, neither is it ever "out."

EXPLORATION PLANS

A complete exploration of all the catacombs in Italy is about to be undertaken by the Pontifical Institute of Christian Archeology, a dispatch from Rome states. The recent Concordat between the Vatican and the Italian Government transferred possession of these early Christian refuges and burial places to the Church. Valuable additions to historical and religious lore is certain to result from a thoroughgoing examination of them.

The catacombs close to Rome have long been familiar to archeologists and tourists; but there are catacombs in many other parts of Italy, as well as in the Crimea, Asia Minor, Syria and many more countries touched by early Christianity. They contain virtually all that is known of primitive Christian art and have revealed much of what is known of the life of the times. Originally merely burial places for those whose creed disclaimed them to incineration, a pagan practice, catacombs came to be places of secret worship. There the early converts set up their altars and worshiped the Only True God. The catacombs became the cellars to which Christianity fled, when cyclones of persecution threatened it above. They gave asylum to the Tongue of Fire, when the winds of worldliness sought to extinguish it.

The catacombs have an intense interest for the modern Christian world. They have preserved the story of the early trials through which Christianity had to beat its way up to recognition. The fact to which they stand imperishable monuments is that Truth crushed even beneath the earth, will rise again; that an idea, if it be worthy, cannot be destroyed on the Cross, at the stake or in the Arena.

NOW ON RECORD

The statement by President Hoover on the subject of Filipino independence followed a report from Patrick J. Hurley, secretary of war, who has just returned from the islands. However, the report seems to have provided the President with opportunity rather than information; for what he has said he might easily have uttered without the benefit of any special, late information. There is nothing at all new in the central contention of Mr. Hoover's remarks that "the economic independence of the Philippines must be attained before political independence can be successful." That is one of the main arguments of those who believe this country should remain in control of the archipelago for some time to come.

The real significance of Mr. Hoover's words is found in the fact that they place the Administration definitely on record with respect to its attitude toward any independence legislation that may be introduced at the coming session of Congress. They put it in clear opposition to the movement throughout some sections of the agricultural West to work for the "emancipation" of the Philippines in order to remove the islands from the list of the competitors of the American farmers.

That movement, particularly strong in the sugar beet and dairy regions, is, however, producing an interesting reaction in Manila. It is so evidently unfriendly toward the Filipinos, so plainly an effort to have them cut adrift as nuisances, regardless of what may be their fate, that there is a distinct tendency among the statesmen in the insular capital to lose enthusiasm for their immediate freedom program. It is reported that Manuel Quezon is preparing to soften a report to the legislature out of "deference to the Administration's wishes." Senator Quezon in the past never has been so considerate of any president.

For the time being Mr. Capone can occupy his mind in deciding which he prefers, jail or prison.

In view of the condition of the weather, it is not to be wondered at that Gandhi is commencing to toodle along toward home.

On the other hand, it is highly discouraging if so much effort and expense must be used in order to get each gangster, and get him on a minor charge at that.

While history in the making should not be overlooked, a little knowledge of the history that has been made through the ages will aid in illuminating that which is being made under our present eyes.

Albert Einstein has thrown over his earlier theory, which only seven people in the world were said to be able to understand, and advanced an entirely new theory of material activity. Whattaman! Whattaman!

MY NEW YORK

By JAMES ASWELL

NEW YORK.—Rubber-necking: On your left, ladies and gentlemen, notice the stunning landmark in a bolero coat, just this side of 50th street, on Broadway. . . . That is a Ziegfeld girl, and her name is Mizzy Mayfair. . . . She is the dance wonder of the hour at 17. . . . Note the way passersby are staring at her, and not for the understandable reasons: It is because she wears no makeup, a daring and even sensational thing for any pretty girl to attempt on Broadway. . . . A natural complexion! Scandalous, her sisters are saying. . . . (Particularly the ones with mirror noses.)

No, lady, it isn't snowing. Those fuzzy flakes which drift down about us in the sunshine are pussy willow down. Each fall pussy willows account for the first false snowstorm of the season. . . . Notice, my friends, that although the day is warm, pedestrians here and there have turned up their coat collars because they think it is snowing!

And there, just ahead, as we turn into 42d street, is Bryant park—New York's Embarcadere, New York's Luxembourg Gardens and Tiergarten rolled into one. . . . More wretched and depraved and desperate men drift in and out of Bryant park than frequent the entire Bowery. . . . And more of the genuinely unfortunate, white-collar workers out of a job. . . .

Notice that expensively dressed young man in the gray hat. . . . He is a marijuana seller, known to the police, but hard to catch with the goods. . . . He sells his dope in the form of cigarettes, called "muggles," at from a dime to a dollar each.

HOP, SKIP AND JUMP

Primo Camera, the boxer built like the Empire State building, gets only $5 a day spending money from his manager. . . . John Golden, reported here some time ago for his private golf course, pee-wee style, has tired of the game and rigged out a private barber shop instead. . . . The barbers aren't allowed to talk show business.

The football team of Sing Sing prison is reported to have in its backfield a former All-American star. . . . "The Unknown Admirer," who sent posties to Josette Laval on shipboard was not unknown at all. . . .

Three men were observed standing before the store in 42d street which has filled its windows with pages from Bob Ripley's "Believe It or Not" volume, each with a pocket in his shirt, copying down the incredible verbatim! . . . August is the banish month for air lines, although that's the thunderstorm period.

BARKING ON—

But don't get the idea that New York is a wicked down. . . . It isn't, as a guy named Aswell has been shouting for no matter how long. . . . Fifth avenue, where the stop-lights are surrounded by figurines of doghouses clad in nothing but a helmet and a shield, where the Eugenie hat has given way to the semi-beret, Fifth avenue, where the doggie stores seem ashamed of their identity and don't hang out a sign—Fifth avenue, for the first time in years and years, has witnessed the wink of dark eyes, traveling two and two at dusk. . . . Not many, but the old world wickedness has come.

And there, on the Avenue at 8th street, is the sight of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Brevoort's mansion. . . . As the season for the Beaux Arts Ball draws near the Brevoorts come sharply to mind, because it was as a result of a huge masked costume soiree at their house that parties of the kind were forbidden in New York for a handful of years. . . . The reason: Mathilda Barclay's forbidden savior from South Carolina crashed the Brevoort gate as a Florentine noble with a black stripe across his eyes and the pair eloped. . . . The bigwigs brought such pressure on the P. D. that masked balls were taboo, with a $1,000 fine—$500 when the host owned up freely.

Senator Jones of Washington was almost too smart, if anything. . . . Although sponsor of the famous "5-and-10" dry law, he became alarmed by what he interpreted as his state's wet drift in 1930 or thereabouts and made it known that he also was prepared to vote for a referendum if necessary. . . . And the Washington Legionaires balloted 16 to 8 dry at Detroit. . . . Jones might have stood pat in perfect safety and gained considerable credit for it.

Such accidents will happen. . . . But the statesmen who got a terrible shock when they read the Legion news from the Michigan metropolis were those who have been proceeding serenely, full speed ahead as dries, firm in the faith that their home folk were irrevocably arid, only to have the Legion vote throw a frightful doubt into

Wet, Dry Fight Places Many Senators On Fence As Sessions Draw Near

(Editor's Note: This is the second of a series of articles on the prohibition issue in the light of the approaching session of congress.)

WASHINGTON.—Dry senators and representatives who, having noted significant barometric readings months ago, ever since then have been standing by to go astern on the prohibition proposition at an instant's warning, are being rewarded now, for their alertness, in a certain peace of mind following the American Legion's 2½ to 1 vote on the wet side of the wet-and-dry question at its Detroit convention in September.

Senator Glenn of Illinois, Senator Walsh of Montana, and Senator McNary of Oregon were among the far-seeing ones who announced, plenty of time in advance, that they were willing to support a policy favoring a prohibition referendum, if desired by their constituents. Senator Wheeler of Montana proclaimed his complete conversion from dryness to wetness more than a year back.

These senators have cause to congratulate themselves. Illinois, Montana and Oregon all went thoroughly wet at the Legion gathering, and Glenn, Walsh and McNary are in a position to go in reverse without undue strain upon their machinery, whereas Wheeler is backpedaling vigorously already.

Senator Jones of Washington was almost too smart, if anything. Although sponsor of the famous "5-and-10" dry law, he became alarmed by what he interpreted as his state's wet drift in 1930 or thereabouts and made it known that he also was prepared to vote for a referendum if necessary.

And the Washington Legionaires balloted 16 to 8 dry at Detroit. Jones might have stood pat in perfect safety and gained considerable credit for it. Such accidents will happen. But the statesmen who got a terrible shock when they read the Legion news from the Michigan metropolis were those who have been proceeding serenely, full speed ahead as dries, firm in the faith that their home folk were irrevocably arid, only to have the Legion vote throw a frightful doubt into them, out of a perfectly clear sky, as it were. It is tough on a politician's entire structure to be brought to a full stop, and maybe have to begin backing up as fast as he previously was moving in the opposite direction, at an instant's notice.

Who would have dreamed that Georgia Legionaires, for instance, would have cast 17 straight wet votes, out of their state's total of 17, at Detroit?

Not Senator George or Senator Harris, to a certainty.

The Georgia Legionaires did, however.

And the Florida Legionaires!—to the horror of Senator Trammell, who split their delegates, probably was not flabbergasted. True, he also is a dry, but he never said much about it. Trammell's record is dryer than Death Valley's.

Although Georgia cast its solid vote on the wet side at Detroit, it is not likely that it actually is quite so wet as that. Most of the states voted under the unit rule, which made the showing a trifle deceptive. Those which split their delegates, according to individual preferences, threw more real light in the extent of their varying degrees of wetness versus dryness.

For example, had the Georgians voted each his personal convictions, they might have divided nine wet and eight dry, as Virginia actually did.

But the Floridians did not vote as a unit; they divided, 11 to 7. There is no doubt as to the proportion of his home state Legion delegation's disagreement with Trammell.

And the intensely dry Senators Ashurst and Hayden of Arizona, Black of Alabama, Barkley of Kentucky, and Morrison of North Carolina—how must they have felt when they read the following returns from the Legion convention?

Arizona, wet 12, dry 0; Alabama, wet 20, dry 0; Kentucky, wet 20, dry 2; North Carolina, wet 19, dry 6.

Arizona and Alabama, like Georgia, may not be quite as wet as the figures indicate; they voted under the unit rule. But there is no mistake about Kentucky and North Carolina.

It is fair to say that some of the dry senators whose states went wet have an excellent right to feel astonished.

No one could possibly have imagined that they would do such a thing.

Kentucky, indeed, is somewhat wetly-and-dryly doubtful, as it is Republican and Democratic; Senator Barkley should have been on the qui vive.

Neither Georgia, Alabama nor North Carolina, however, has a single wet member in either house of congress, out of their total of 38, mostly chosen at last November's elections. As to what has occurred to them in the meantime, or whether or not their American Legion votes were truly representative, one person's guess is as good as another's.

An analysis of the Legion's vote reveals many queer things, but nothing queerer than the Maine lineup.

Maine!—the initial prohibition state!—dry for nearly a century! Thirteen wet ballots to one dry one!

There was no accident about it, either. The Pine Tree State did not vote under the unit rule. It gave its lone dry a chance to express himself.

In this connection, be it remembered that Senator Arthur Gould of Maine, whose term expired last March, was one of the wettest wets who ever came to Washington. Personally wet senators from dry states are not so unusual, but those who boldly admit it are almost as rare as live specimens of the dinosaur. Gould even wrote a recommendation for a grape concentrate company and permitted it to be published. His fellow lawmakers marvelled, but now they are wondering if he did not know Maine better than they thought he did.

And is the Anti-Saloon League worried?

On the contrary, "Opposition," said one of the organization's high functionaries whom I questioned on the subject, "is what prohibition thrives on. We were getting a trifle flabby from lack of it. This will bring us new members and contributions and restore our fighting spirit. It's the best thing that has befallen us since the 18th amendment's adoption."

The league presents a bold front to the situation, whatever it may think of it.

"The Principle of the Thing" I Got Into a Row

A Dollar and a Half

By MARSHALL MASLIN

There's a useful phrase.

When you're doing something and you're a little uneasy about it, you say, "I'm doing it for the Principle of the Thing."

That's a fine defense. That explains everything. You'd like to be kinder, you'd like to be more generous, but the Principle of the Thing stands in your way, and, of course, a man can't go against his principles.

When we do something decent, when we help another fellow out, when we don't talk so much about our principles, we explain that he was a fine human being and he appealed to our sympathies—and besides, we wouldn't have been able to sleep o' nights if we had withheld our helping hand. . . . We feel better when we do the right thing, but we excuse ourselves for our softness. We don't want everybody to know.

But the Principle of the Thing is quite different. Almost always when we talk of that, we feel on the defensive. We are explaining. We are trying to put ourselves in a better light. We are putting in a plea of not guilty of stubbornness, not guilty of selfishness, not guilty of wanting our own way at the expense of the other fellow.

Once, I remember, I got into a row with a business firm. I wanted something. The firm didn't want to give it to me. I felt abused. They felt they were right. I hung on and argued. They argued back. I wrote letters. They answered them. . . . The thing went on for days and for days, and, at last, I won or they grew tired of it. And squabble and let me win. . . . And then I felt ashamed. . . . The whole trouble was over a dollar and a half. But I never admitted, even once, even to myself, that I was fighting for a dollar and a half.

No, I was fighting for the Principle of the Thing. I was carrying the banner for the innocent, blameless, incorruptible public. . . . So I won, and the victory was hollow and rankling.

I'm not the only one, either. I'm back over your own life. Think of all those times when you wanted something and couldn't have it and insisted on getting it because of the Principle of the Thing. . . . And then blush!

Soda Bicarbonate Relieves Ills

By LUCAN CLENDENINE, M. D.

In one out of ten households, I should say; there is someone who has to take a dose of soda every once in a while. There is, of course, not a boarding house in the land that doesn't contain a soda taker. As you gaze up at large apartments or apartment hotels you may confidently say to yourself, "There is in each one of those mammoth structures at this moment a human being who is measuring out a level teaspoon of soda, putting it in a glass of water and drinking it down."

The people who do this, of course, are the "acid dyspeptics." Some of them have ulcer of the stomach. The soda—chemically soda bicarbonate—is alkaline in reaction and mixing with the excessive acid secretion of the stomach of these patients, it neutralizes much of this acid and so relieves the feeling of discomfort or dyspepsia.

If a supply is not purchased from a drug store the patient will calmly go to the kitchen and get the baking soda and use it in the same way, for it is the same thing.

It is, in my opinion, a very good method of treatment and only very rarely does it harm. Its popularity, as the saying is, commends it. Fifty million dyspeptics can't be wrong. So when we hear, as we frequently do, some stomach specialist vehemently explain that the pain of ulcer is not due to the excessive acid present, or that the soda itself forms more acid and, therefore, should not be used, we used to say whenever these very scientific objections to the soda were presented to him, "Well, all I know is that the patients tell me the soda relieves their distress."

One of the advantages of soda bicarbonate is that fairly large doses can be taken without harm. Many people take one or two teaspoonfuls after each meal and one before going to bed and continue at this for years without any apparent ill effects. It is true cases of alkalosis have been reported, but they are so rare as to be almost negligible.

There are other substances which do the same thing and act in the same way as soda. One is milk of magnesia—chemically magnesium oxide. It is not so powerful an antacid as soda bicarbonate and has a mild laxative effect which may be unpleasant. But it is often used in combination with soda.

Calcium carbonate, which is simply finely powdered chalk, does the same thing, and can be used in even larger doses than soda bicarbonate.

Romance Goes On Rocks

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

It is really quite discouraging to think of the number of romances that go on the rocks just because of the lack of a timely word of explanation.

A chap calling himself Dreamer has written that he loves a girl and that they "went steady." He was saving up money so that he could ask her to marry him, when the depression struck, and he was ashamed to ask her for her company when he was without funds.

Now he has a business of his own, but his girl "won't even look" at him, and although he wrote to her and asked for a date, he never has explained just why he left her flat. Instead, he is letting her think that the reason is that she refused to play kissing games one night at the home of a friend of his.

DREAMER, Dreamer, why do you not write and tell her exactly what caused you to break off with her? You should have told her what the trouble was at the time, and asked her to wait until times were better. There is enough woe in the world that cannot be side-stepped without going out of one's way, as it were, to make it; or at least, of withholding a perfectly good explanation of one's conduct when one would set matters right.

Maybe the girl friend won't take you back even after you explain just how it was, but at any rate, you'll have the satisfaction of knowing that you did all you knew to make things right.

JUNE: Don't you think that this young man would have asked to call at her home or for a date if he had been at all interested in you, June, at the time, and asked her to wait until times were better, not justified in asking him to accompany you anywhere or to call at your home. As he knows your mother as well as you, he surely would feel free to ask to be permitted to call if he wished to do so.

WONDERING: Can't you just be friendly and jolly with this boy you like? Don't turn around in school to talk to him unless it's about your lessons. Don't take it for granted that he likes you and feels friendly. Don't write notes to him. In other words, don't take any of these school boy friends seriously if you can help it.

RED HEAD: Oh, these silly boys and girls who are friendly one time and then won't speak. They don't know any more than you and I what makes them act that way. We all have streaks of doing it, however. I don't believe, from their actions, either of the boys is very seriously in love with you. Ask the one boy for your ring and insist that he give it to you.

Boys, as a general thing, don't like to dance with fat girls, although many fat girls are fine dancers, as light on their feet as possible. Why not be careful what you eat? Cut out candy and cake and pie from your menu, eat fruit, vegetables—especially green ones—some lean meat, and drink milk so as to keep in good health, but don't overeat, and do plenty of walking and other good exercises.

WHAT A HIGH POWER TELESCOPE REVEALS ON THE SUN

By Arthur Dev. Carpenter
The sun at the surface of the photosphere (lightsphere) appears to be in a state of rapid circulation: The hot gases from the interior boil up and look bright, while the masses settling to the interior being cooler, are darker in color. Seen with powerful telescope these particles that have been compared to "rice grains," are really from 200 to 500 miles in diameter and quite irregular in shape. In addition to this mottled effect there appear bright streaks and patches (called faculae) on the sun that give evidence of being elevated regions of the photosphere. Because of their elevation, they lose less light. In the solar atmosphere are luminous calcium clouds and dark clouds of hydrogen.

THE SOLAR ATMOSPHERE
Overlying the photosphere of the sun is another gaseous layer embracing perhaps 300 miles in depth called the reversing layer because when submitted to the spectroscopic it produces bright instead of dark lines in the spectrum. It contains many of the familiar elements known to earth. Surrounding the reversing layer is the chromosphere several thousands miles thick, composed mainly of hydrogen and helium. It is called the chromosphere because when observed by itself during a total eclipse of the sun, it shows up as a beautiful crimson color. The chromosphere and the reversing layer combined are known as the sun's atmosphere. Its temperature is lower than that of the photosphere.

It is estimated that there are 1,443,957,000 acres of forest in North America.

Golden Tresses Latest Craze

By GLADYS GLAD

The popularity of blonde tresses has rocketed skyward with a vengeance here of late. Hair of every hue and description is being swapped for fair, golden locks by the flower of America's womanhood. Even some of our foremost brunettes and red-headed screen stars have gone blonde within the last few months. Bebe Daniels, for instance, and Joan Crawford, and Clara Bow, and Sally Blane.

If you are a member of this ever-increasing bleached blonde group, you should be very careful of the manner in which you shampoo your hair. For there is a special shampooing process that is designed for cleansing bleached hair. And the majority of bottle blondes would do well to employ this shampooing process in preference to the usual method.

To administer this special shampoo, you need the whites of four eggs, two lemons, and plenty of "yellow grease." The egg whites should be mixed with two table-spoons of water, and beaten to a stiff consistency. And the juice should be squeezed from the two lemons, strained, and added to a pint of clear, tepid water.

The first step in the actual shampooing is to saturate the hair thoroughly with lukewarm water. Hot water should not be used at any time during the shampooing, and dressing for the tenderloins.

After a few minutes the egg whites should be rinsed from the hair, a second application made, and the rubbing repeated. This should be continued until all the egg white has been used. Then the hair should be rinsed thoroughly, and as the final step, the lemon solution should be used. It should be poured slowly over the head in such a manner that it reaches all parts of the hair. It may then be rinsed from the hair, or permitted to dry on, as is preferred.

Bluing
Brunette: The bluing used in the bluing rinse is not the laundry bluing. There is a special hair bluing that may be procured at any of the better class of beauty shops.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED

Tom Swope, sports editor for the Cincinnati Post; Joe Meyer, coach of Xavier University, accompanied by Steve McNitt, secretary to George Babcock, athletic director at the University of Cincinnati, and another fellow who is knee deep in the furniture business in Cincinnati, were interested observers of the Wilberforce-Alabama contest here Friday night. Meyer was particularly enthusiastic over the all-round play of the Force. He said he would not mind training his own squad for that of Wilberforce.

As for Tom Swope, here is what he had to say about Wilberforce in his column Saturday:

"The stronger college teams in Ohio doubtless would have their troubles winning a state championship from year to year if the Wilberforce University team was allowed to compete for the title."

"This was the impression I gathered while standing in the rain at Xenia Friday night and watching the Wilberforce boys smother the Alabama State Teachers from Montgomery, Ala. 32 to 0, by a sparkling display of football."

"Wilberforce has a large squad of well-built and well-coached Negroes. Many of them can throw a football like non-athletes toss a baseball. And they can catch it too. Their line play was excellent."

Cornell's 13 to 0 triumph over Columbia was all that prevented Mr. Raymond Cox, the well known insurance man, from battling 1,000 percent Saturday in his forecasts of the probable winners of sixteen of the more important college football games. Ray had the incredible record of thirteen winners; two ties and one loser. He guessed right on these games:

Holycross, 33; Brown, 0.
Notre Dame, 19; Carnegie Tech, 0.
Vanderbilt, 49; Georgia Tech, 7.
Ohio State, 12; Indiana, 6.
Miami, 19; Denison, 0.
Northwestern, 32; Illinois, 6.
Ohio U., 18; Ohio Wesleyan, 0.
Pittsburgh, 41; Penn State, 6.
Michigan, 21; Princeton, 0.
Purdue, 14; Chicago, 6.
Muskingum, 15; Cincinnati, 0.
Minnesota, 14; Wisconsin, 0.
Army, 27; Colorado, 0.

These games ended in a tie:
Yale, 23; Dartmouth, 23.
Navy, 0; W. Va. Wesleyan, 0.
(Ray had Dartmouth and Wesleyan.)

He missed this one:
Cornell, 13; Columbia, 0.

Famous Autos meet Krippendorf Monday night, while on Wednesday night the three teams composing the Butters men's League resume competition after a week's vacation. In the other league, Foot-Res and Flex-Weit meet Thursday night and Flex-Mode and Arch-O-Pedic have a match Friday night.

HALLOWE'EN OVER TO XENIA'S RELIEF

Another Halloween has come and gone.

Tribute was once more paid by Xenians Saturday night to the traditional custom of merry-making on the eve of All Saints Day.

Masqueraders, despite the unpleasant weather, had their annual fling, while costume dances and numerous Halloween parties held the spotlight.

Police and residents breathed a sigh of relief Sunday because of mischievous pranks of children are now over for another twelve months.

That ghostly time of the year when superstition would have you believe the night air is filled with spirits and black cats ride on broom sticks behind witches has passed.

PLEADS NOT GUILTY

Pending a hearing set for 2 p. m. Friday, Masters was released on $500 bond. An affidavit signed by L. A. Davis, county road patrolman, charged him with possessing four quarts of whiskey.

Home Cadets Defeat Springfield Reserves

TAKE 34-0 VICTORY ON SOGGY GRIDIRON HERE ON SATURDAY

Avenge Defeat Last Year; Wooten Is Star Of Game

Shattering a two-game losing streak, the O. S. and S. O. Home football machine, gathering momentum as the game progressed, romped to a 34 to 0 victory over Springfield High School reserves on the Home gridiron made soggy by a drizzling rain Saturday afternoon.

Entirely outplaying Coach Ray Otto's light eleven, composed of junior high students and high school sophomores, the cadets even made amends for the 12 to 0 beating received in last year's contest with the Wildcat second team.

Starting a team consisting principally of substitutes, the cadets sent in their regulars in the second period after the first quarter had ended scoreless. Insertion of the first-string team was the signal for a relentless attack that resulted in five touchdowns, one in the second period, another in the third and three more in the fourth. Four points after touchdowns were added.

Wooten proved the individual star of the game, blocking well and making a number of sensational runs. He scored the first touchdown in the second period, breaking through left tackle to sprint fifty-one yards over the goal line. He was aided by nice interference by D. Badal, who plunged for the extra point.

Late in the third stanza Quarterback Yowell tossed a pass to Long, who ran nine yards for a second touchdown. The plunge for point failed.

Early in the fourth period after Long had pounced on a Springfield fumble, Wooten made his second touchdown on a fifteen-yard run wide around end. Soon afterward, with cadet reserves back in the game, Blair flipped a pass to D. Badal, who galloped thirty-five yards over the goal line. A pass, Shriner to Tyrell, accounted for the next kick-off. Halfback Blair intercepted a Springfield pass and romped thirty-three yards for the last touchdown. Jones went off tackle for the point.

Gaining a total of 320 yards from scrimmage as compared with forty-six for the Wildcat reserves, the Home made five first downs against two for the visitors. The cadets completed three passes in six attempts, while Springfield completed one in six tries and had one intercepted.

Wooten proved the biggest ground gainer for the Home with eighty-one yards. Badal gained seventy-four. Blair contributed sixty and Shriner, fifty-one. Swanton was outstanding for Springfield, gaining twenty-one yards. The Home eleven plays Cedarville High on the latter's gridiron Friday afternoon. Lineups and summary:

Home	Pos.	Sp. Reserves
Tyrell	LT	Start
Malone	LT	Poster
Bowers	LG	Black

RIO GRANDE BEATS CEDARVILLE GRIDDEES 31 TO 6 ON SATURDAY

Before a large "home-coming day" crowd, Rio Grande College romped to a 31 to 6 victory over Cedarville College Saturday in a return football clash on the Rio Grande gridiron.

Playing its first home game of the season, Rio Grande not only repeated but improved upon an earlier 18 to 7 triumph over the Yellow Jackets.

Following up an advantage when Kelly returned the opening kickoff for a touchdown, Rio Grande outplayed the Borstmen throughout the balance of the game, except possibly in the final quarter when Cedarville pushed over its lone touchdown. Fullback Irons plunged over for the marker.

Rio Grande held a 25 to 0 lead at halftime. Score by periods:

FORMER OHIO STATE GRID STARS WILL BE HONORED AT CEREMONIES ON SATURDAY

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 2—The presence of the football squads of Ohio State and Navy, a quintet of Ohio State football men who have won All-American recognition in recent years will be honored here Saturday at a special ceremony before the State-Navy football game.

A buckeye tree planting will be held in honor of these men and the first football team at the university.

The "famed five" who will assemble at Ohio Stadium will be "Big" Harley, halfback, whose sparkling gridiron performances are generally credited with securing the backing for Ohio State's present stadium; "Pete" Stinchcomb, halfback, Ed Hess, guard, Leo Raskowski, tackle, and Wesley Fesler, end, latest of the quintet to gain national honors.

All living members of the first team put on the field by Ohio State will be present. Two members of that squad of 1890, C. W. Foulk, quarterback, and Charles B. Morrey, left tackle, are now professors at the university.

Sixteen trees are to be planted at the north end of the stadium, representing the five All-Americans and the first varsity team of 1890. George M. Trautman, former three-sport Ohio athlete and Athletic Director L. W. St. John will officiate. Dr. George W. Rightmire, president of the university, has been asked to speak. The tree planting is sponsored by Scarlet Key, varsity managers' association.

N. Y. STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 2—Industrial stocks took the lead in a moderate upturn in prices in the early trading on the big board today. A buoyant feeling in the financial district was stimulated by the forecasts of "dollar wheat" and a rise in crude oil to eighty-five cents a barrel. This compared with twenty cents a barrel a few months ago.

Funeral services for Howard Crawford, 45, Jacksonville, Fla., who was drowned near that city Friday, were held in Jacksonville Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. He is survived by a number of relatives in this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Crawford and another couple were fishing and Mr. Crawford fell from the motor boat when he stood up to signal a passing boat. It is not known whether he was seized with a sudden heart attack or if he lost his balance. The body was not recovered until Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. None of the other members of the party was able to operate the boat which drifted to a small island. They were marooned there several hours until they attracted attention of others with fires.

PEOPLES BUILDING AND SAVINGS OPENS IN NEW STRUCTURE

Employees of The Peoples Building and Savings Co. went to work Monday in the handsome new home of the company on Green St.

Removal of the business from the old location on E. Market St. was accomplished Saturday afternoon and involved only a transfer of records, since the new home is equipped with new furniture.

While no formal opening of the new building to the public is contemplated, Xenians who have inspected the structure vote it the handsomest and most impressive addition to the downtown skyline in years. The rich interior of the banking room, handsomely decorated with touches of color to relieve the severity, has attracted the admiration of visitors.

Perhaps happiest of those involved in the change is C. E. Arbogast, president, for whom the new home is the culmination of a dream of many years. Mr. Arbogast headed the building committee and was pleased to be able to carry out a plan he had conceived many years ago when the idea of a permanent home was first considered.

The removal was effected between banking hours so that there was no interruption of business.

THIRTY-FOUR VOTE

Thirty-four absentee ballots were cast with the board of elections before the time expired Saturday night by voters expecting to be away from their home precincts in Greene County on election day Tuesday, according to Earl Short, clerk of the board.
